Strengthening Indigenous community action on alcohol

by Maggie Brady
Australian Government, Department of Ageing

This book was developed for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people who want to tackle the effects that grog has on their communities. It provides people with ideas and strategies for managing alcohol. It tries to provide as many choices as possible for people to use. The advantages and disadvantages for each course of action are also provided.

The book is based on what Indigenous people themselves have been doing in communities.

Available in your public library [2].

Links